Dear Editor,

Following this mail, I would like to submit my manuscript. I declare that this manuscript is not under consideration for publication elsewhere. Here I attach my manuscript edited based on your template and the declaration of authorship. I attach two type of doc, one is RTF and the other is DOCX. I do this because there are figures and tables in my manuscript so that I am worried you cannot open it. Hence, I give it for option. I am really looking forward to hearing your feedback regarding my manuscript submission.

Thank you very much.

Dear Editor,

I would like to ask about my manuscript status submitted to your journal in the beginning week of September. Is it still on review process? How long does the process take time? Please clarify me about it. Thank you very much.

Dear Authors,

I have received one of the reviews of your paper, which I send in attached. According to the received review, the paper requires major revision. Please find detailed comments to Authors in the review report. I am waiting for the second review in the coming days. The final decision on the acceptance of the paper for publication will be taken after receiving the second review and the paper with the changes resulting from the Reviewers' comments.

Taking into account your question, I am already sending the received review without waiting for the second one, so that you can get acquainted with it.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Authors,

Thank you for receiving the revised version of your paper. Unfortunately, the paper still requires a proof-reading and English should be improved. References list still requires the extension.

Please find comments marked in red in your paper (in the attachment).
In addition, I am sending the paper template.
Please send the revised manuscript by October 31.

In declaration of authorship, the contribution of authors should be given in percentages.

Dear Authors,

Thank you for sending the manuscript and declaration.

I have some questions:

1. Since the source is not given in figures 4-10 and 12, I have a question whether it should be understood as source: own study?
2. I have noticed that the Figure 11 is missing. Similarly, there is no Table 3 and 14. I have a question whether the figures and tables should be renumbered or some of them are missing?
3. Do the authors have ORCID (Open Researcher and Contributor ID) digital identifiers? If so, I would ask for their application/sending.

Kind regards,
Agnieszka Blokus

Thank you for mailing.
1. I draw the figures myself, thus I do not give source note. But if you find similar figure in other previous articles, I do not mind revising my figure.
2. I guess it needs to be renumbered.
3. If the ORCID ID is a must, we will register ourselves in ORCID
I will soon send the newest file. Thank you.

This is interesting and straight forward paper applying basic correlation analysis for a number of parameters affecting hip accidents. The paper needs some further work before it can be accepted as a journal paper: - Most of the figures do not have high enough quality and they should be improved e.g. the font size is too small - Table 5 summarises the main parameters studied, but the parameters such as leakage is not described so to me all the parameters have to be further clarified by a short section summarising what does they mean should be added - section 3.2 include the data collection, this is too short as always the data base will from one of the important results so please extend further details what the data bases contents and how the data is collected - the reference list is too short, there are a number of recent publications related to the marine traffic safety is missing, this has to be extended, look e.g. the following authors: Mazaheri, Montewka, Goerlandt, Hänninen.....this will also change the state of art chapter
